

MANY SHERIFFS WERE HERE

And They Made Stormy Day Sunshine At Luncheon Meeting, Addressed By F. A. Tirrell, Jr.

The Maine Sheriffs' Association held a luncheon meeting at the Thorndike Hotel Friday with Knox County's popular sheriff acting in President Earle kept things moving.

the dual role of president and host. Although the stormy day was well calculated to discourage traveling there was a very full attendance.

Seated at the head table with President Ludwick were Frank A. Tirrell, Jr., guest speaker, County Attorney Stuart C. Burgess, Frank A. Winslow, representing The Courier-Gazette. Other special guests were Mrs. T. L. Foulkes of Dover-Foxcroft, Mrs. J. S. Lyette of Houlton, Mrs. C. L. Wilson of Dover-Foxcroft, and Charles M. Richardson, Rockland's chief of police; and E. Stewart Orbeton, State Parole Officer.

Others seated at the tables were Charles A. Watts, sheriff of Kennebec County; Jasper S. Lyette, sheriff of Arrostook County; Earl R. Hawkins, sheriff of Franklin County; Allen H. Jones, State Parole Officer; Deputy Sheriff Ernest M. Gray; Philip M. Dearborn, sheriff of Cumberland County; W. J. Robinson, Louis A. Gendron, sheriff of Androscoggin County; George R. Bryant, criminal investigator of Cumberland County; Arthur Bazilov, Martin J. Gallant, sheriff of Somerset County; Everett L. Knight, sheriff of York County; Herbert L.

Discussion during the banquet found the assemblage in happy accord with the lobster dinner served by the hotel management—a two-pound lobster at each plate, together with a four-ounce lobster stew and other fixings, not forgetting a man's size slab of apple pie served a la mode.

With Adelaide Adelman, the hotel's versatile hostess at the piano,

And Brother Tirrell kept 'em laughing and Howard Crockett, the Lions Club song leader at the fore, there was a period of vocal indulgence.

The ladies were then excused because of the "masonic meeting," which President Ludwick said was to be held.

"I am not going to tell you what your duties are," said the guest speaker, Frank A. Tirrell, Jr. "Most of the judges before whom I try cases tell me I am wrong, and when they don't the juries do."

Out of his long connection with Superior Court, particularly the criminal phase of it, Mr. Tirrell has assembled a fund of amusing anecdotes, and these he recited in his inimitable manner before a mirth-filled audience. Lapsing into seriousness he concluded his half-hour recital with a fine and deserved compliment to Sheriff Ludwick and his department.

The Association then went into executive session and talked shop for two or three hours.

And, as the comic writers express it, "a good time was had by all."

Lawrence Hamlin, who conducts a one-man shipyard, in marked contrast to his foremanship job when the Camden yard was in its prime, has sold a new rowing skiff to George H. Bitwood who will devote it to fishing purposes.

Why He Opposed

Gov. Hildreth Apparently Had Good Reasons For Vetoing Running Races

In vetoing the act which would introduce running races in Maine Gov. Horace A. Hildreth issued the following statement:

"I fully realize that the Legislature was greatly influenced in its passage of this bill by its desire to assist the Executive Branch to balance the budget. It does not seem advisable however at this time to extend further the reliance of the State on income from taxes of this nature. A State which depends too largely on income of this type builds on shifting sands and plants the seed of future financial disaster. The passage of this Act is not necessary to present a balanced budget."

"From the best information available I am far from being convinced that the hopes of the proponents of this bill, with respect to the benefits to be gained therefrom, will ever be realized. I am advised by the Chairman of the Racing Commission that in his opinion the revenue to the State is not likely to exceed $50,000 a year at first and even after two or three years it is doubtful whether this would exceed $100,000 which necessarily would be reduced by substantially increased costs to be borne by the State Racing Commission in administering this law. He also advises me that in his opinion Maine would get only the "tag end" horses of low rating with all that implies by way of a following.

"Under the terms of the bill the racing season is severely limited, which is undoubtedly necessary to protect harness racing at fairs but which nevertheless minimizes the prospects of substantial revenues from the running races. Further, there is no assurance that Maine will not be in conflict with major New England running race meets which might negative the hopes that special trains from out of the State would carry the sporting traffic to Maine rather than to Rockingham Park in New Hampshire, Narragansett Park in Rhode Island and Suffolk Downs in Revere, Massachusetts.

"Even if the anticipated revenue were to accrue there is good reason to doubt that there would be any net gain to the people of Maine. Sound business interests in communities which have become commercial racing meccas uniformly agree there is little gain therefrom to the community and surrounding territory, for what is taken in as 'easy money' is too often paid out to provide aid and assistance to an increased number of citizens who have dissipated their earnings at the races.

"These opinions are shared by many citizens in the territory involved and elsewhere throughout the State who strongly oppose this further step into a field of activity which until a few years ago, was entirely foreign to Maine. The State of Maine has enough problems connected with pari mutuel harness racing to discourage us from taking on the more serious and complex problems forecast by this bill."

Fourteen Points

Are Raised In Connection With Proposed City Manager Government

Rockland, April 27.
Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—

In answer to Mr. Smalley's article of April 27 issue of The Courier-Gazette, on the proposed City manager form of local government, and his original idea—as the writer of the article "A Taxpayer's Plea," I can see only one thing Mr. Smalley, really wants, and that is the name of the author. Why?

He admits that he or some other member of the various committees, have and would give me reliable data, through the columns of this paper in answer to the questions I asked, but he must know my name, and as he says a (this or a her).

I believe the taxpayers should know about this data, and all the questions I asked in my article, as well as those I am going to ask in this one.

I know that all taxpayers want to know both sides of this question on this new charter, and why it has not been told before? Why must someone ask these important questions? The taxpayers want to know the kind of government they are to live under if it becomes a law.

I have attended meetings of your charter group several times, and have a good idea about it. I also know that Portland has city manager, and now the taxpayers want the old form of city government back again.

And those same taxpayers now know that it is a hard thing to get the old form back again, once it is lost, so taxpayers be sure you know what you are voting for, and get what you want.

I also read in the Lewiston papers that under the new form of city manager form of government that Auburn has raised the tax rate from 60 to 70 mills, will the taxpayers welcome that if it happens here in Rockland?

Now Mr. Smalley, if you or some of your committees will honestly answer all these taxpayers' questions, all of which concern the proposed new city manager form of government, its leaders and workers, I will make my name known to you, and the city, through The Courier-Gazette. The questions to be answered are as follows:

1—Will the franchise of a voter be lost if he can vote for only five councilmen who serve without pay, and is not able to vote for the manager?

2—Will the outstanding members and leaders of the new form of government seek the office of Councilman without pay?

3—Do you and the members of the committees think it patriotic at this time to have an election to change our form of government while there are some 1,200 to 1,500 boys away from Rockland, fighting for us in hostile waters and foreign lands?

4—How many persons are, or have been engaged to canvass from house to house, securing names on a petition to support this new form Sept. 10?

5—How many are Democrats and how many have received pay for their work?

6—Where there is no Democratic party, will this new form kill the Republican party in this City, as far as the City Government is concerned?

7—How many taxpayers would want their taxes raised? And if they knew they were to be raised would they as a whole vote for this new form of Government?

A veteran of the invasions of Morotai and Leyte, his ship is engaged in guarding the sea lanes over which our fighting ships, steaming through Far Northern waters to hit Jap-held Pacific defenses in their home waters.

8—Will Rockland pull out of the school union if the new form is adopted?

9—Who is paying the cost of printing, stamps, etc.?

10—Can Rockland pay a real good city manager, without raising the tax rate?

11—What would his salary be to start, and would it be increased after he took office?

12—How many committee members belong to the Rotary Club?

13—Will there be cars, workers and drivers on election day Sept. 10, and who will pay for this cost?

14—How much money has been spent to date on this charter? What will be the total cost after election?

15—Mr. Smalley, will you be a candidate for Councilman, without pay?

16—How many from Ward 3 served on the last adoption committee? How many from the other wards?

It is my honest, candid opinion, that these same business men and women had they worked as hard, and had put as much interest in the old form of government, as they have the new form, Rockland would be one of the busiest cities in the State. We need no new charter, all we need is to bring the old charter up to date and to an extra cost to the taxpayers, elect one of our own men as Mayor, and if need be raise his salary to meet the times and secure the best. There are still real business men left in our city, and plenty of good Aldermen.

What we must do is to take more interest in our City, attend your caucuses and nominate men of quality for your Aldermen and the same for the Mayor. And on Sept. 10 go to the poles and vote "no" on the new city manager form of government. Let's not vote for something that other cities are trying to get rid of after having a taste of it.

PEACE SEEMS NEAR

A late bulletin this morning says there is every indication that a peace agreement has been reached and will soon be announced. The story has not yet had official confirmation.

A Memorial Service

Huntley-Hill Post and Auxiliary Honor Men Who Died In World War II

Sunday was a busy day for those connected with Huntley-Hill Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and the Auxiliary, when a memorial service for men from Rockland, who had made the supreme sacrifice, was held in the State Guard Armory on Spring street, starting at 2:30. Following the memorial service, at which Capt. George G. Chiera of Wiscasset, was the principal speaker, the installation of officers of both the Auxiliary and the Post were held.

Capt. Chiera, one of whose duties it is to visit the parents and other relatives of those who are killed in action or who die of wounds or illness, said that invariably, he is asked two questions: (1) Why did we get into this war? and (2) Why should my boy have been killed?

Capt. Chiera said that he always explained that when such "skunks" as Hitler and his backers, and those of Japan, made decisions to arm, and conquer the whole world, that there was no choice but that we must get into the fray in order to protect ourselves against domination by those of such barbarous nations.

Referring to the false rumor published by radio just before eight o'clock Saturday night, to the effect that Germany had surrendered unconditionally to Russia, Great Britain and the United States of America, he said that he felt that an official announcement would be made soon, because Germany was just about all through and disintegrating rapidly.

Laurence J. Hamlin, acting as master of ceremonies, introduced first of all on the program, Frank A. Winslow, editor of The Courier-Gazette, who spoke briefly concerning Rockland's contribution of more than 1100 persons to the various branches of the armed services, and then read the list of those who had died: Frederick D. Merritt, Sumner Waldron, Philip French, Ernest Carter, Knott C. Rankin, Jr., Earl McMahon, Clayton McMahon, Myron Young, Kendrick Searles, Charles Breen, Karl Kiskila, Wendell Piffard, Ralph Skinner and Frank Roscoe. Carnations were presented to members of the families of the deceased, present.

Officers of the Auxiliary were installed by Mrs. Jeannette Joseph of Waterville, department president who was assisted by Angeline Spinyne and Beatrice Shorey of Augusta. Officers installed were: Mrs. Lenora Cusson, president; Mrs. Eugene Thompson, senior vice president; Mrs. Toiva Suomela, junior vice president; Cora Delano, chaplain; Annie Nye, secretary and treasurer; Lora Boynton, conductress; Ethel Leonard, patriotic instructor; Cora Delano, historian; Annie Leonard, guard Gladys Hamlin, Ethel Leonard and Arlene Moody, trustees, and Jennie Witham, color bearer.

Gifts were presented by Mrs. Cusson to Mrs. Joseph, Mrs. Shorey and Mrs. Spinyne.

Then followed the installation of the officers of the Post, Andrew Boynton the retiring commander, relinquishing the gavel to Past Post and Past Department Commander, Oliver R. Hamlin. Albert J. Brickley, past department inspector, acted in the capacity of conductor.

Officers installed were: Laurence

Following the installation ceremonies, which were carried out in a fine manner, there was a brief speaking session, those taking part being City Marshal Charles M. Richardson, Alderman William J. Sullivan, Oliver R. Hamlin, Alderman John J. Perry and Everett W. Humphrey, manager of the U. S. Employment Service office and representative of the Veterans' Administration.

Those assisting at the meeting were: Sgt. Earle Young and Pvt. Arthur Cayton of Company B, Maine State Guard, color bearers; and Henry Gilsdorf, S.C. U. S. Coast Guard, pianist. Special guests included SPARS Kathleen Smith, SSic (Y) of Somerville, Mass., and Janell Schmidt, BM2c, of South Bend, Ind.

A social hour, with refreshments was enjoyed after the close of the meeting, this part of the event taking place in the V.F.W. hall on Main street.

Anthony Smalley of Mechanic street is a surgical patient at Knox Hospital.

The Black Cat

(By The Roving Reporter)

One reason why I like to listen to the broadcast of the Brooklyn baseball games is because my old friend Clyde Sukeforth of Washington is again in the backstop's berth for the Dodgers. And playing good ball too.

Sgt. Charles Wadsworth, who is with Gen. Patton's Third Army in Germany, would probably pop off a few extra Germans if he knew that he has just become a daddy. His wife, Daurice (Toleman) Wadsworth gave birth to a son (April 22 at the Marine General Hospital in Portland).

Fred C. Green, Editor of the Watertown (Mass.) Sun writes:

"I'm surprised and disappointed that no one has relieved my curiosity with regard to the herons on Vinalhaven. Are there any and do they disappear—then return as regularly as the Old Farmer indicates? The accompanying letter from a former Vinalhavenite came to my office a week ago but it does not mention herons.

Regarding your questions in The Courier-Gazette the fish hawk "Old April" has been a regular Summer visitor to Vinalhaven for many years, always arriving the first of the month. He spends many hours on top a flagpole overlooking the bridge then away to his home at the head of the pond. He must be very old and there will be many disappointed people when he doesn't return for his Summer visit. Quite often his arrival is noted in the Vinalhaven news.

At regular intervals I hear from Emilio Hary, former member of the Rockland Post Office who is engaged with similar duties in England, and I get the British war angle from the London newspapers which he sends me. The latest batch contained The Illustrated London News, The Sphere and Cavalade, the last named publication modestly advertising to "cover the world." The English readers are great believers in illustrations.

THE WINDS OF FATE

One ship drives east and another drives west!
With the selfsame winds that blow.
'Tis the set of the sails,
And not the gales,
Which tells us the way to go.
Like the winds of the sea are the ways of fate.
As we voyage along through life,
'Tis the set of a soul
That decides its goal.
And not the calm or the strife.

Book Review

K. S. F.

Angel in the Forest. Author, Marguerite Young. Published by Reynal & Hitchcock, New York.

One finds in this history fable, told by the author of her native Indiana home, a fairy tale of really two Utopias. Could we but realize it, almost every State in the Union has some excellent history, fantastical in some cases, in others less theoretical and based on reason. This book is the result of years of study and research, and is even far more than that. This author has almost a profound poetic imagination. Thus one might stamp this Indiana story an epic of the Nineteenth-century diligent search for Utopia. This author has a fine sense of humor and knows how to combine it well with a direct seriousness and dignity. Marguerite Young has published two volumes of poetry from which she received wide acclaim. There is found organic unity in her poetic work. She is now at work on her first novel. This book being her first prose work.

Sergeant Nelson of the Guards. A novel by Gerald Kersh. Published by the John C. Winston Co., Philadelphia.

Not anyone since Kipling has captured the character of the British Tommy with such fidelity.

This is the story of Sergeant Nelson of the Coldstream Guards, who covered the retreat at Dunkirk in World War II. It was his spirit and the spirit of men like him who stood for triumph. English blood is staunch, always well led, yet full of the most incalculable fire.

Mixed with power and sweetness, the Englishman, always a gambler, loves the feel of odds against him. Bill Nelson as a type is about as much American as Englishman, only his language is purely British. Brave men do the fighting for the world, and join forces against the menace of outer darkness which comes to tear the foundations of life apart at times.

After a life of trouble in his home, one man said, "O' loike war, war is noise; it gives you a chance to ave a bit o' peace." You will laugh and you will cry as you read this story, so well told.

Sixty-Two Present

At Regional Meeting This Vicinity—R. L. Wiggin Presided

Sixty-two representatives of hospitals from Camden, Rockland, Damariscotta and Belfast attended a regional group meeting in First Parish House, Belfast, Wednesday night. The meeting opened with a dinner. Rev. Frederick D. Hayes, minister of the church, asking divine blessing. The group stood in silence out of respect to the memory of Miss Harriet J. Blanch, late superintendent of Waldo County Hospital.

Ralph L. Wiggin, president of Knox Hospital, Rockland, and president of the group, conducted the meeting, presenting the following speakers: Miss Pearl R. Fisher, R. N., secretary of the Maine Hospital Association; Prof. A. G. Eustis, head of the Department of Business Administration at Colby College, and Dr. Frederick T. Hill, president, Maine Hospital Association.

Miss Fisher gave a complete and interesting report on the New England Hospital Assembly held recently in Boston. Prof. Eustis preceded his discussion of "Legislation, Passed and Pending," by making three important announcements:

[EDITORIAL]

OUT OF DEMOCRATIC LEWISTON

Maine's Democracy seems not only to have its headquarters in Lewiston, but its hind-quarters as well, for already there is talk that Mayor Alton A. Lessard of that city may be the next Democratic nominee for Mayor. His vote-getting ability in his home city is pointed out, for in the Lewiston mayoralty primaries he had a majority over five other candidates, and in a city where political preferences are so strongly divided this was quite some achievement. But once outside of the hidebound Androscoggin metropolis Lewiston's chief executive would be apt to experience a change in weather decidedly cooling to his aspirations. As if they had not already been dampened by the recent row among the State's Democratic leaders. However this is an off year in politics and nobody should become unduly excited.

ENDING BEFITTED THE MAN

If it is possible to bring degradation to an unspeakable creature like Benito Mussolini it was accomplished Saturday when the one-time dictator was shot by Italian patriots, together with his mistress and 16 other Fascists, many of whom had been members of his cabinet. The wretch who entered his forces against the Allies when they were seemingly on the point of defeat, begged the patriots to save his life and he would give them an Empire, though what empire he did not have the opportunity of explaining. After the execution the body was dumped in a square at Milan, where civilians, who were once his staunch supporters, trampled upon the body and spat on it. Il Duce would strut no more, for his cowardly career was ended. The love nest was closed.

V.F.W. BODIES HONOR OUR DEAD

It remained for Huntley-Hill Post, V. F. W. and its faithful auxiliary to pay first tribute to Rockland's 16 men who have thus far made the supreme sacrifice in the World War now pending. The list, published on another page may not be fully complete, although much care was exercised in the compilation. While the list far exceeds the losses sustained by Rockland in the first World War we cannot fail to derive consolation from the fact that the ratio is very small in comparison with other cities, and in fact with some of the towns much smaller than Rockland. This is very apparent to all who scan the daily casualty lists, and is often commented upon by readers.

ROCKLAND KEPT COOL

While Rockland radio listeners were vastly interested in those Saturday night bulletins, relating to the rumored end of the war in Europe, the city did not go off half-cocked as most communities did throughout the Nation.

With the memory of that false-alarm celebration of the first World War still fresh in mind it behooved us to wait until the official word comes.

SPOT LIGHT TURNS TO ITALY

It has been rather disturbing to the beacherites, safely ensconced on this side of the water, because the American Armies were moving so slowly on the Italian. Why with out superior numbers and equipment were we unable to match the pace set by the fast moving Yanks in Germany and the other countries? Editorially the Christian Science Monitor says:

The Allied break-through and the rout of the Germans in Italy is as heartening as it is significant. For seven long months the polyglot, truly international armies of Gen. Mark Clark have stuck to their unspectacular job of keeping a score of Nazi divisions thoroughly interested and occupied without having the power necessary to destroy them. In the meantime other Allied armies have held the spotlight from the D-Day landings through the crossing of the Rhine and the battles in Germany itself. Small wonder cartoonist Mauldin's two famous characters arriving on the Western Front, said they had "just come up from Italy to get a little publicity."

The capture of Verona following that of Ferrara completely cuts off all German troops west of these two rail and road hubs. Those who may have escaped to the east will have a hard time joining their comrades in the Alpine "redoubt." The railroad to the Brenner Pass is cut at Verona and the remaining roads and rails leading northeastward into the mountains will be under concentrated air attack.

The industrial Po Valley, guarded by neutral Switzerland, the Alps, the two seas, and the 20 German divisions, was heralded by the Nazis as one of the fortresses in which resistance would go on until the Allies fell out among themselves. That enemy hope is now shattered, and their strength for a possible last stand around Berchtesgaden sharply cut. And to the British, Canadians, South Africans, New Zealanders, Americans, Brazilians, Poles, Gurkhas, Italians, Nisei, and others who have made up the incredible Fifth and Eighth Armies goes the credit and the glory.

ments: That Waldo County now has 100-percent membership in the Maine Hospital Association; that, due to a recent ruling of the O.D.T., the annual meeting scheduled for June 4 and 5, must be cancelled; and that a course in Hospital Administration will be given at Colby College for three days, Sept. 20, 21 and 22, urging that every hospital superintendent be in attendance.

Dr. Hill's discussion of his topic, "Legislation," was intensely interesting and instructive. He stated, that, in his opinion, Senate Bill No. 191, would pass with little or no opposition, but with possible modifications.

In order to assist in support of constructive, and defeat of destructive legislation, as concerns Maine hospitals, Dr. Hill again stressed the point that each and every trustee, or director, of every hospital

Supplies Doughboys

Union Boy With Truck Unit Which Has Traveled Million Miles

Cpl. John C. Danforth, mechanic of Union, is a member of the 88th Division Quartermaster Company, whose 45 trucks negotiate some of the most rugged mountain terrain in Italy to supply doughboys on the Fifth Army front near the Po Val- ley. The trucks have traveled nearly 1,000,000 miles in Italy. Meantime the quartermasters have constantly maintained a forward clothing exchange shower unit for the 88th "Blue Devil" Division and have served as a graves registra- tion unit.

Trucks of the 88th Quartermas- ter Company moved doughboys into positions at Minturno and Castel- forte for last Summer's spec- tacular offensive from the Garigli- ano River, toled ammunition aboard tank, landing craft to the Anzio beachhead where they ex- perience heavy German bombing and strafing attacks, carried an in- fantry task force into Rome under fire and, during the trying Winter campaign in the Appennines, sup- plied the doughboys with wet- weather equipment and Winter clothing. The truckdrivers met an extraordinary challenge when the front advanced swiftly beyond Rome to the Arno River while bases of supply remained far to the rear. A similar situation arose when it was necessary to make 100-mile runs to supply operations within the Gothic Line, via Florence and Glogio Pass.

The company has brought up an average of 25 tons of rations and 11,000 gallons of gasoline daily. The outfit usually carried up ra- tions and other supplies by day during the Summer offensive and transported troops at night. One squad guided a mule train over terrain impassable to trucks to de- liver supplies to infantrymen fight-

USELESS COWBOY

By ALAN Le MAY

CHAPTER XII

"It's a funny thing," Luke Packer said. "It's easy to tell when a man is lying; but it plumb fails you to say when he's telling the truth. But that ain't any excuse. A thousand things other told me you was only a stinking horse. No such damn fool could be the real Monte Jarrod. But I never caught on. Until the real Monte Jarrod fired from the slope."

"I suppose I've done more mean things in my life than one man can remember," Luke Packer said. "I was speaking with great difficulty now. 'But the mean things you do are brushed over and forgot. The one thing nobody ever forgets . . . is a baldhead jackass of a blunder. Him, least of all.'"

Those were the last words Luke Packer ever said. He died with a strange, morbid smile, without bitterness and without faith. Seemingly he literally believed, as he had said, that the death penalty was a suitable one for a man of his occupation to pay, for the crime of mistaking one man for another.

Melody Jones shook out a saddle blanket, and laid it over Packer's body; then immediately for the whole thing, for now the outer door was pushed open from outside, and a bright light came in. "What?"

"I don't follow this," Melody said. "George pleaded with him, 'Don't try to get it through your head. We ain't got time for no such complicated project as that! If you want out of this, will you please, please do like I say, just for the next few minutes?'"

"Go catch your ponies," George Fury ordered Melody. "All the dead level urgency he could put into his low tones was there. 'Saddle 'em both, yours and there's. Then get mine. He's about forty rods down the creek, in a little meadow. You can't miss catching him because he's close hobbled, and he's also short picketed.'"

Out in the fresh dark Melody realized that the cabin he had left had become an unwholesome place. There within the adobe walls was everything needful to put an end to him. His doings were wandering and purposeless, and he valued them; and the living air in his lungs became increasingly precious as his time supply ran short. It was a considerable relief to find their ponies about where he had left them; he was already aware that they might easily have been gone.

After that he found George Fury's pony, after walking past in the dark

"Why?"

"This here is rock - bottom," George Fury said, completely without hope. "Up until now we was in bad shape, but all right. Even if they hung you for Monte Jarrod, we could of proved the mistake. But what good will it do to prove who you ain't, now that you come fitted up with a corpus delicti of your own?"

Melody put away his gun. "Sometimes," he said, "it don't seem to me like we get the breaks."

"I suppose you realize," George Fury said, "there's a posse pretty near on top of us right now?"

"George," said Cherry de Longpre with deep gravity, "you shouldn't have done this."

"Who, me? What? Done which?" "You shouldn't have shot him."

"I shouldn't of what? Shot who?" "The man under that blanket is — was an express company detective. His name was Luke Packer. He was one of the most feared peace officers in the West; everybody knows his name. 'The man' a single man in the whole territory who wouldn't have been a better choice for you to kill than this man."

"Yes, but —"

"There's going to be such a man-hunting hullabaloo as the West has never seen before. I wouldn't give two cents for the chances of either one of you."

George Fury looked from the girl to his partner, and back again, slowly, with the dreary disillusion of a man who witnesses an all time low.

"So now," he drawled, "you can't neither of you think of no better out than to blame the whole damn calamity on me."

"It ain't any question of blaming nobody, George," Melody said sadly.

George reddened. "Why yew befo-

"Lit up like a new saloon," he breathed aloud. "Couldn't wait until I was out of sight hardly, before they relax completely!"

He made one concession to caution. With the elaborate patience of exasperation, he picked up his ponies and made a careful scout-circuit of the cabin. With some difficulty he made his way to a place from which he had a line upon the interior through the shattered pane.

One figure was included in the segment of his vision. It was that of George Fury.

George stood at ease against the wall, and he was engaged, exactly as Melody might have expected, in making what appeared to be a lengthy speech.

Patience left Melody Jones. Throwing aside all pretense of caution, he went slashing up to the door of the cabin and kicked it in.

"Now you looky here," he shouted, stepping into the full light. He stepped then and looked around him. Cherry de Longpre and George Fury were not alone. Three interlopers made the cabin seem packed. Their guns were in their hands; and they had so placed themselves that they could keep an eye on George Fury while their guns converged upon Melody at the door. The body of Luke Packer, however, was no longer in the bunk.

"All right, m'boy," the oldest of the three men said, "I'm Sheriff Thingan—the big end of the law in Payneville. Stick your fingers in your mouth," he ordered surprisingly.

"What?"

"Stick your fingers in your mouth. Both hands."

"What for?"

"Because I tell you to," Sheriff Thingan said, angering. "And be pert, before I let fly!"

Melody looked with bewilderment at George Fury, who was staring at him ironically. "I never seed so many crazy people," Melody said, but he obeyed Sheriff Thingan and put his fingers in his mouth, all the fingers of both hands. He rolled an eye at Cherry to see if she was laughing. She was not.

Sheriff Thingan now stepped forward, approaching Melody from one side. He pulled Melody into the room by a shoulder, and spun him around, then disarmed Melody from behind. After that he shut the door.

"You can collapse now," Thingan told Melody. "Turn around, and take your feet out of your mouth, and start to talk."

Melody Jones took a slow look at his captors. Sheriff Thingan was somewhat apple-cheeked, but with deep grin lines, amounting to dimples. He affected a neat white mustache, more cleanly trimmed than the old conventional buffalo-horn model, and curled only slightly, after the manner of the better class of Mexican border desperadoes. His hat—no ten gallon, but perhaps too—was aught of a sporty angle. Sheriff Thingan had the name of being a profoundly wise, infallibly cagey old man. What Melody saw now was that this was a profoundly silly, infallibly eccentric old man.

"Lucky you be," Sheriff Thingan said to Melody, "that it was me caught up with you."

"Why?"

Sheriff Thingan directed a genial question to his deputies. "Ain't this little punk that's been making out to be Monte Jarrod?"

Thingan's number one deputy now spoke. He was big and coarse featured, his face crudely and strongly made. He had big aggressive ears, a big craggy nose and jaw; his sparse hair had once been red, but now was grayed to a sandy roan. His rough-cut grin had the expression of a pumpkin face, and it showed yellow teeth as big as an elk's, with gaps between. And his eyes, which were a muddy blue, had about the same expression as holes blown in a roof.

This man's name was Royal Boone.

"I shore don't know what you fellows want," he grinned. "If he ain't Monte Jarrod, he'll sure do in Monte Jarrod."

"You're just rope-handy," Thingan said, his words bumped by a chuckle.

"Well, he" virtually volunteered to get hung, ain't he? Why quarrel with the guy?"

The second deputy, Mormon Stocker, was a swarthy, beery little man with a broken nose. He had a habit of carrying his chin on his chest, and his mouth was a line of disgust, and gave a peculiar look to his eyes, which were buttiny, and had circular lines about them above and below, like the eyes of an owl.

He switched these owl eyes upon Melody through a moment of dark depression. "Nump," he said.

"I suppose," Royal Boone said with sarcasm that killed himself, "you aim to fight it out with the Cotton boys to see that they don't hang him."

"I do like hell," said Sheriff Thingan.

Cherry de Longpre began to speak rapidly, in a low monotone. "Why don't you let him go? What-kind of murderers are you? Give him a chance to run for his life!" She looked gray faced and desperately tired, but to Melody she had never looked prettier in her life. "This fool kid has nothing to do with any of this. Let the Cottons catch him for themselves!"

Mormon Stocker said with deep dejection, "Let the kid loose."

Royal Boone looked at him blankly. "Have you gone out of your head?"

Sheriff Roddy Thingan looked at Cherry de Longpre with all kinds of benevolence. "Crime doesn't pay," he told her. "How come you got your foot stuck through the fence like I swear, I'm 'goin' to stop this corrupting American woman-kind around here if I have to hang fellers, right and left!"

"Listen you old fool," said George Fury, "don't it never occur to you that you won't never find out where the loot went to, if you let this punk

BIBLE QUESTIONS

ANSWERED BY THE VOICE OF PROPHECY INTERNATIONAL BIBLE BROADCAST

Question—What books in the Bible are called the Minor Prophets and why are they called that?

Answer—The twelve books from Hosea to Malachi are called the Minor Prophets because they are small in size as compared with Isaiah, Jeremiah, etc.,—not because they are not important.

Q.—What animals were originally given to man for food?—I mean at creation.

A.—None. Fruits, grains, and finally vegetables were given. (See Genesis 1 and 2.) About 1600 years later, after the flood, flesh is mentioned as an article of diet. (See Genesis 9:3-5.)

Q.—I want to know if I am right in thinking that the trouble which men have in this world is all the "hell" they will get.

A.—The Bible says in Psalm 9:17: "The wicked shall be turned into hell, and all the nations that forget God." The punishment of the wicked will take place at the day of judgment. 2 Peter 2:9: "The Lord knoweth how to deliver the godly out of temptations, and to reserve the unjust unto the day of judgment to be punished."

Q.—Was there ever a time when there was no Bible in the world?

A.—Yes. For about 2500 years, from creation to Moses, there is no record of inspired writings. But it is definitely stated that "Moses wrote all the words of the Lord." Exodus 24:4. While there were holy men before Moses' day—Noah, Abraham, Joseph, et al.—with whom God spoke, we do not read that they were inspired to put God's words into writing.

Q.—Does 2 Corinthians 3:18 mean that we are all to see God's blazing glory at the time?

A.—Read it: "But we all, with open face beholding as in a glass the glory of the Lord, are changed into the same image from glory to glory, even as by the Spirit of the Lord." This pictures a change in us as we look at the glory of the Lord. The glory of the Lord is His character. When Moses pled with the Lord, "I beseech Thee, show me Thy glory," the answer was, "I will make all My goodness pass before thee." Exodus 33:18, 19. The promise was fulfilled. (See Exodus 34:6, 7.)

Anne R. Merchant

Anne (Reid) Merchant, wife of Warren H. Merchant died Sunday at her home on Blake street, following six months' illness. She was born June 29, 1893 in Brooklyn, N. Y., daughter of the late Michael and Bridget (McGrath) Reid. At the age of 16 she came to Maine, where she attended the schools at Mt. Desert and shortly thereafter was employed at the residence of Dr. C. C. Morrison in Bar Harbor. For several years she was children's nurse in the household of Dr. Karl Adams of Roxbury, Mass., after which she moved to Camden and entered the employ of Dr. and Mrs. W. F. Bisbee.

In 1918 she was married to Warren H. Merchant, a schoolmate of her youth at Hall Quarry. A son, Robert Warren, was born of this union.

Devoted to her family circle, her home was her first and foremost interest—a home marked by gracious hospitality and a cordial welcome at all times. That her warm nature and kindness won for her sincere friendships, was apparent from the innumerable attentions and gifts bestowed upon her during a long, but patient illness.

She was an active member of Arey-Heal Post American Legion Auxiliary, in which organization she held office for several years. Sociable and neighborly, she also attended a number of women's sewing clubs. As long as health endured, she never missed a Sunday Mass at the Church of Our Lady of Good Hope.

Her husband, Warren H. Merchant, survives, also a son, Pte. Robert W. Merchant of the Signal Corps, Camp Crowder, Mo., who was furloughed home for the emergency; a sister, Katherine McDonald; a brother, Francis P. Reid of New York; an aunt and foster-mother, Mrs. John McDonald; and an uncle, Thomas J. Reid of New York.

The Rotary Club

Members Hear Interesting Recital of Court Experiences By G. B. Butler

Rotarian Gifford B. Butler, member of the local club since December, 1936, was speaker at the Rotary meeting Friday. He told of some of his experiences since Jan. 1, 1901, when he became clerk of Knox County Courts. Interesting, indeed, were his references to the Justices serving back in those days, and his remembrances of when there were several trial justices in the County brought new information to several of the younger members present and to the boys and girls of the champion High School basketball teams, who were guests at this meeting.

Mr. Butler discussed such matters as juvenile delinquency, stating that for a nine months period in 1944, 63 percent of the stolen automobiles were taken by youths under 21. He also deprecated the increasing number of divorces, and told his hearers that Maine led all other States in the number of divorces, taking into account the population.

He closed with a plea for a strong control over young people by the home, school and church. Mr. Butler was introduced by Ray Eaton, program chairman for the month. Officers for the year commencing July 1, 1945, nominated at last week's meeting, were elected unanimously. Lucius E. Jones will be president and the other officers will be: Walter C. Ladd, vice president; I. Lawton Bray, treasurer; Louis A. Walker, secretary and Albert C. McLean and Willard P. Gray, directors. Elmer B. Crockett becomes a director, ex-officio, upon the expiration of his term as president.

A happy feature of the meeting was the presentation, by President Elmer B. Crockett, of Past Presidents' pins to: Raphael S. Sherman, 1927-28; Joseph Emery, Sr., 1928-29; Edwin L. Brown, 1929-30; Dr. Alvin W. Foss, 1931-32; Alan L. Bird, 1933-34; Dr. Walter P. Conley, 1934-35 and Dr. James P. Kent, 1935-36. Homer E. Robinson, 1930-31 had already received a past president's pin, and Arthur L. Orne, 1936-37, was not present to receive his pin.

President Crockett announced that he had received an invitation from Capt. Harold P. Brown of Company B, Maine State Guard urging that Rotarians attend a public meeting to be held May 2 at 7:30 in the Armory, Spring street, to hear Col. Lester M. Hart, Assistant Adjutant General, in connection with a recruiting campaign to bring the enlisted strength of the local company up to fifty.

Ninety-seven were present, including A. Burton Stevenson, Jr., and Allen P. Payson of the Camden club; Ensign Joseph W. Lamb, guest of a member; Ruth Witham, chaplain; Betty O'Brien, Sylvia Christoffersen, Margaret Huntley, Shirley Drinkwater, Louise Connolly, Dorothy Benner, Norma Howard, Betsey Cooper, Charlotte Cowan, Jeannette Gardner, Betty Gray and Elizabeth MacPhail, Rockland High School basketball players; Kenneth Chatto, manager; Wesley Martin, Oscar Flint, Robert Teel, Roland Chaples, William Holden, Ernest Munro, Wendell Webber, Donald McLellan and Donald Marsh, High School boys' basketball team; Lawrence J. O'dell, coach; John Hughes, Charles Foote, Richard Kaler, Anthony Guistin, Henry Sleeper, Richard Pease, James Connellan, Maurice Powell, and David Holden, Junior High basketball team.

Guests of the club, for the presentation of past president's pins, were R. S. Sherman, Joseph Emery, Sr., and Dr. James P. Kent. Fifty-eight members of the local club attended the meeting. Rotarian James M. Acheson of the Augusta club, proprietor of the Hotel Rockland, was in the city, but, lunched in the smaller diningroom.

Attention Cooks!

Here's A Chance To Enter
Doughnut Contest—What
Fred Simmons Says

Watertown, N. Y., April 28
Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—

In my previous letter I intended to extend a very cordial invitation to those, if any, who may have sons, daughters, or husbands either at Pine Camp, or Sackett's Harbor to mail me their address, and I will get in touch with them, and give them a feed like mother used to make, if possible.

Kenneth Roberts in an article some time ago wrote that after doing considerable worldwide traveling he found the best cooks in the World in Maine. He also stated that one did not get into Maine until North of Kennebunkport.

I might add that he should not think of leaving Maine without a visit to Rockland and vicinity.
Roberts and the party a trifle North of the city seem to be in agreement.

It pays to advertise but one should be willing to deliver the goods.

I have been anxious for some time to try a contest of doughnut making with some good Maine cook.
The doughnuts can be shipped and keep good for a few days easily.
I would prefer one of the best of cooks, for it is much easier to accept defeat from the best.

The offer of date April 6, Page 2, Column 1 is open to anyone in Rockland or Rockport.

In case more than two accept I would have to have friends draw from the box before opening, because it would be hard to judge over three different offerings at one sitting.

We are just an amateur cook of only six years' experience who has had average success to date but since I advertised I am willing to produce.

This And That

By K. S. F.

It is well for us all to keep in mind the tremendous strength and wide interests of the Russians.
World peace must be our aim, and our desire to have this great country happy in the peace. They are seemingly willing to show good will and make compromises as the rest of the countries must do for lasting peace.

Nearly 59 American officers and a large number of enlisted men all trained in city administration, have been chosen for one of the heaviest tasks the military government has come up against, and this is to bring into order the absolute chaos of Cologne. The city had a population of more than 100,000, thousands, all of whom are living in virtual caves and fear to move out.

was naturally recognized. He is a

Gov. and Mrs. Hildreth To Be Guests At Annual Meeting
Friday Night

The annual meeting of the Woman's Educational Club will be held in the Universalist vestry Friday night, and all attending will be given an opportunity to shake hands with Gov. Horace A. Hildreth and wife and to partake of the refreshments, proffered by the never-failing hospitality of Mrs. Flora Ulmer, Miss Bertha Orbeton and Mrs.
Louise Ingraham of Owl's Head.

Among the most competent and hardest workers "behind the scenes" for club success throughout the years are Mrs. Ida Simmons, Mabel Holbrook, Bertha Orbeton and Annie Hahn, the last three being lifers —members, while Mrs. Simmons heads the list as successful collector.

For its long array of pleasing Summer home picnics stand out the names of such charming hostesses as Lena Merrill, Effie Lawrence Marshall, (Miami, Fla., life member), Hazel Woodward (life member), Marion Weidman, Mrs. Everett Humphrey (life member), Mrs. Eula
B. Gerrish, recording secretary and Mrs. Cora L. Haraden, as treasurer.

Both life members, are faithful and efficient officers; while Mrs. W. O.
Fuller, poet and life member, is priceless for publicity and general co-operation.

The club is very lucky indeed in possessing among its 110 gifted life members Mrs. Effie Lawrence Marshall, Dr. P. B. Sisco, of Baltimore, who is chairman of the Jubilee Advisory Committee to celebrate the club's silver anniversary and V-Day soon. Dr. Sisco is a skillful practicing physician, summing in Rockport. Mrs. Julia Towne Marden of Baltimore, is a poet, whose Victory poem is recently set to delightful music by Frank Young of Owl's Head, cornetist and instructor; and Mrs. Donald H. Fuller of Miami, author of several recent books of high value.

The most recent acquisitions as life members are: Mrs. Catherine Libby, Mrs. Lillian Joyce, Mrs. Helen Chapman Bean, Mrs. Leslie A. Wilson, Mrs. Ralph P. Conant, Mrs.
Mae Perry, Mrs. Paul J. Julien, Mrs.
Donald C. Haskell, Miss Vera A.
Gordon, Mrs. Maude Tibbets, Miss Mary E. Taylor and Mrs. E. Carl Moran, Jr.

In noting a few only of the 100-percenters it is impossible to omit the distinguished life member, Margaret Chase Smith, who became a lifer when she was Mrs. Clyde Smith of Skowhegan, who made a deep impression when she spoke at one of the club's picnics at the cozy home of Mrs. Flora Ulmer and who

Lady Knox Chapter

Annual Meeting Next Monday at the Home of Mrs.
Walter C. Ladd

The annual meeting of Lady Knox Chapter, D.A.R., is to be held at the home of Mrs. Walter C. Ladd, Walker place, preceded by a covered dish luncheon at 12:30, Monday May 7. Mrs. E. F. Glover will give a book review on "Anna and the King of Siam."

An amendment to the By-Laws, Article VI, making it read "six members shall constitute a quorum at all meetings of the chapter, and three at all meetings of the board of management" is to be acted upon.
The State Society Maine D.A.R., is asking each member to contribute 5 cents per capita toward a stained glass window in the Robert Morris Memorial chapel at Valley Forge.

Honolulu and become eminent in the Naval Affairs Committee in Congress.

Three things this club prides itself upon: First in offering life memberships for only $5. After this wicked war no longer needs the club's $1,400 worth of War Bonds this money becomes a Permanent Education Fund to be named and spent as members may decide later.
Second, its doors are always wide open to every feminine, nothing exclusive or snobbish about it from start to finish, whether "Judy O'Grady or the Colonel's Lady."
Third, although its membership rolls do disclose Republicans, it is wholly democratic in method and every party is welcome to the floor in discussions, while it constantly proclaims that "Partisan Politics is not barred."

Besides the annual election of officers at 3 p. m. with current events and short club papers on Arnold, Nimitz, Tojo, Russia, Burma Road,
the club has two more outstanding Maine celebrities as speakers.

At 3:30 Lincoln Colcord of Sears-port, famous author of valuable widely-read books, who speaks against the New Deal policy from the standpoint of a dissenting Democrat, while the highly successful Educator, Harrison C. Lyseth, Superintendent of Portland's Schools, comes to discuss "The New in Education," two gentlemen all members should, come early to hear.

During the evening session together with the address by Governor Hildreth, about 100 of our city's most musical High School youngsters will be presented in glee club and orchestra by their highly talented teachers, Mrs. Carol Jilson and Mrs. Ruth Sanborn.

Washington And You

By Margaret Chase Smith

Washington, April 25—A board of Visitors named every two years by the Chief Executive, the President of the Senate, and the Speaker of the House has just finished its annual session at the Naval Academy, Annapolis, Maryland. As a member of this group I visited many activities at the Academy and sat around the table with college presidents, professional men, United States Senators and House Members—18 in all—discussing improvements and possible expansion. I served on the sub-committee covering subjects of morale, discipline, ethics, health, entrance requirements, physical training and athletics, and extra curricular activities.

During our stay the young men appointed from the Second District visited and entertained me in general mess hall at luncheon. More than 3000 of us sat around the tables, everybody talking and apparently happy.

I was very proud to introduce our boys to my colleagues—Coker Marble, of Skowhegan, better known as "Bill" among his classmates, my special escort, and Richard S. Jones, William Nivison, Andrew B. Sides, Jr., and Richard H. Sprince. These young men are working hard, crowding four years study into three years, preparing to take their places in retaining the world's greatest Navy.

On my return to the Capitol the House was working on another huge naval appropriation bill that the men in the Pacific will have everything needed to carry on to complete victory. On the same day a number of us sat around the table at luncheon to meet Dean Virginia C. Gildersleeve. I had invited her to have lunch with me and talk over the week we spent together looking over the naval establishments where WAVES were at work and the coming San Francisco Conference where she will serve as one of the American delegates. Miss Gildersleeve is president of Barnard College and has done a great deal for the women in the naval services. She is chairman of the Educational Board named when women entered the services.

Among my other guests were Hon. Roy L. Fernald, here for the day on business, my two colleagues, Frank Fellows and Robert Hale, also Mrs. Hale and the women Members of Congress. Patricia, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hale, is a student at Barnard the same school Mrs. Hale graduated from.

Mrs. Roy Hussey, Regent of the Maine D. A. R., of Augusta, has been at the Mayflower Hotel this week attending executive board meetings. Although she could not attend the luncheon we had dinner together in the evening and discussed some of the proposals coming before Congress that the members of the D. A. R. are interested in. Oscar Clarke, Librarian for the Supreme Court, and Mrs. Clarke, were also dinner guests.

Since the shortage of manpower, especially on our farms and in the woods, Canadian woodsmen have been more appreciated than ever and we wish we could have had many more. Out of it all has come considerable discussion and some dissatisfaction.

Prior to October 1944, there were 3,850 Canadians in the quota allowed to enter the United States for this purpose. Later last fall, Canada increased this number to 5,060. This figure was arrived at by a base quota of 4,600 allowing the United States to recruit up to ten per cent more, which gives us 5,060. About this time the War Manpower Commission requested the War Production Board to recommend to War Manpower the companies and contractors that should have Canadian laborers assigned to them and in what quantities.

Some of the 5,060 laborers are allowed to come into this country to cut lumber for export to Canada. Of the number remaining, three-fourths are assigned to pulpwood operations and one-fourth to logging operations.

Companies and contractors now enjoy the highest percentage they have had since 1942, and we hope Canada will not change this policy except to increase the quota.

Lumber operations who already had men prior to November 1944 were given no increase on the basis that giving them more men would put them in unfair competition with those who had no men. All new applicants for men were given men on the basis of their annual production, that is, those having an annual production of one million board feet per year.

The WPE advises that it is true that no company has as many men as they would like but to increase any one's quota at the present time means that some one else must have men taken away. The WPE further advises that since these arrangements were made, practically every one is cooperating and we are having better results.

Washington's Burial

When The Father of His Country Was Laid At Rest

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—

The tributes paid today to the memory of our late beloved President Roosevelt, recall to mind an account of the funeral day of another beloved president, George Washington who died Dec. 14, 1799. The following description of the final tribute to his memory I copied from a very old book, doubtless written by an eye witness of the occasion.

Alexandria, Dec. 20:— "On Wednesday last the mortal part of Washington the Great was consigned to the silent tomb with solemn honors and funeral pomp. "A multitude of people from many miles around assembled at Mount Vernon, the choice abode and last earthly residence of the illustrious chief. There were the groves, the spacious avenues, the beautiful scenery, the noble mansion, but alas! it's august inhabitant was gone. His body indeed was there but his soul was fled.

"In the long and lofty portico where often the Hero walked in all his virtuous glory, now lay the shrouded corpse. The countenance still composed and serene seemed to express the dignity of that spirit which so lately actuated the lifeless form. There, those who paid the last sad honors to the Benefactor of his country took a last and sad farewell.

"Near the head of the coffin were inscribed the words 'Surge ad judicium, about the middle, 'Gloria Deo,' and on the silver plate 'General George Washington departed this life 14th Dec. 1799.'

"Between 3 and 4 o'clock the sound of artillery from a vessel in the river firing minute guns aroused all our sorrowful feelings, the body was moved and a band of music with mournful melody, melted the soul in all the tenderness of love. The procession marched in the following order:

Cavalry, Infantry and Guards with arms reversed, clergy, music, the General's horse with his saddle, holsters and pistols; Col. Simms, Ramsay, Payne, Col. Gilpin, Marshall, Little, mourners, Masonic brethren and citizens.

"When the procession arrived at the bottom of the lawn on the banks of the Potomac, where the family vault is placed, the cavalry halted and the Infantry marched toward the mound and formed in lines. The clergy, the Masonic brethren and the citizens descended to the vault, where the church funeral service was performed. Three

Rockland Soldier Is Member Of Unit Attached To "Blue Devil" Division

Cpl. Samuel B. Gray, Jr., machine gunner, is a member of the 339th Field Artillery Battalion, which has been pouring steel into German targets in Italy's Po Valley since Oct. 31, when it fired a dozen 155-millimeter howitzer shells across the highway connecting Rimini and Bologna. In combat 328 of its first 365 days in Italy, the battalion fired 85,000 rounds weighing more than 4000 tons at the enemy.

So close was the battalion to doughboys in the offensive on Rome, Battery B was subjected to German machinegun fire near Ciampino Airport, just below the capital. The battalion fired across the Tiber River on fleeing enemy troops only 1,000 yards away. Battery A recently captured three Germans who were on patrol. In the Mt. Grande region, the 339th was the target of enemy mortar fire.

general discharges by the artillery, cavalry and infantry paid the last tribute of respect to the intrepid Commander in Chief of the American armies.

"The sun was setting—alas, the son of glory was set. No, the name of Washington will live forever." Mrs. Fred Howard.

The 339th landed in North Africa in December, 1943, and entered combat by shooting across the Garigliano River in Italy, March 7, 1944. Displacing 16 times, the battalion reached Rome, where its guns were put into operation along the Via Flaminia.

A red letter day in the unit's annals is last July 12, in the course of which the 339th destroyed two German tanks, damaged several artillery pieces, killed several horses and drove enemy personnel out of a forest, killing many of them.

The battalion supported operations that bridged the Arno River and pushed ahead to a point east of Futa Pass. The outfit fired 1,300 shells in the opening day of the Gothic Line battle and continued to pour out more than 1,000 rounds a day as Allied troops knifed through Futa Pass. Then the battalion went through Gogo Pass to positions near Firenze, where batteries often were isolated by floods. The outfit's course in October, 1944, followed the Fienziola-Inola road to Castel Del Rio and thence to Belvedere. For a period of 10 days, early in October, the big howitzers concentrated heavy fire on German artillery pieces, mortar and personnel.

In one month in the Fall, the battalion fired 14,350 shells. It marked the end of 1944 by firing on a battery of four German guns on the last day of the year, scoring one direct hit and starting 14 fires.

The State Guard unit has proven its great value to the community in emergencies without number in times past. It behooves us all to lend our earnest support to its plea at this time.
